

MANDATORY ENGLISH LANGUAGE SUBJECT IN BSC PROGRAMMES

2 mandatory language courses have been introduced in the first and second semesters of the BSc programme of electrical engineering and informatics in order to reinforce effective learning.

- BMEGT63EEI1 English for Electrical Engineering and Informatics 1. (0/4/0/f/3)
- BMEGT63EEI2 English for Electrical Engineering and Informatics 2. (0/4/0/f/3)

Students are assigned and registered for courses centrally by the language institute, so it is unnecessary to register in Neptun while deregistration of such courses is not allowed.

In the first week of the first semester, students need to write a placement test so that they can be assigned in one of the three level groups (beginner, intermediate, advanced). Depending on student progress and the recommendation of teachers, it is possible to transfer from one group to another during the study period.

The fulfillment of the English course is a must to all students in the first 2 semesters of the BSc programme to students who do not have a certificate of adequate English knowledge issued by BME GTK Centre for Modern Languages. Please note that no other language certificates are accepted. It is a requirement to obtain the certificate by the end of the second study period and is also a condition of further studies.

To obtain the language certificate, you need to:

- Fulfil the requirements of the pre-engineering English course
- Fulfil the requirements of the BSc English course in the first semester
- Fulfil the requirements of the BSc English course in the second semester

Students obtaining the English language certificate by the beginning of the given semester may select an elective economic and human subject instead.
